

What happens if an attendee has a fever upon arrival?

Upon entry all guests will be thermal scanned for their temperature.

If they are shown to have a fever at arrival, the security personnel will have the individual go through the thermal scan a second time to confirm temperature.

Should the guest have a temperature confirmed as 99.9 degrees or over they will not be permitted further into the building.

At this point, the Guestroom reservation(s) may be canceled or date changed without a charge. Please contact your group contact to make arrangements.

Provided below is a suggested road map depending on your individual circumstances:
